ILLUS: Bob Perks is a professional speaker, an author, and vocalist. He tells of overhearing a father and daughter in their last moments together at an airport. When the daughter's plane was ready to depart, they hugged and he heard the father say, "I love you. I wish you enough." She in turn said, "Daddy, our life together has been more than enough. Your love is all I ever needed. I wish you enough, too, Daddy."

They kissed and she left. The old man walked over toward the area where Perks was seated. Perks could see the old man wanted and needed to cry. Perks tried not to intrude on his privacy, but the old man welcomed him in by asking, "Did you ever say goodbye to someone knowing it would be forever?" "Yes, I have," Perks replied. Saying that brought back memories Perks had of expressing his love and appreciation for all his Dad had done for him. "Forgive me for asking, but why is this a forever goodbye?" Perks asked. "I am old, and she lives much too far away. I have challenges ahead and the reality is, the next trip back would be for my funeral." Perks asked. "When you were saying goodbye, I heard you say, 'I wish you enough.' May I ask you what that means?" The old man said, "That's a wish that has been handed down from other people. It's a wish to say it to everyone."
